Description: The 2003 Coroflot Members Show is an exhibit of more than 30 objects created by members of Coroflot.com, one of the world's premiere on-line communities for creative professionals. Coinciding with the 2003 International Contemporary Furniture Fair (ICFF), the show is a small sampling of the most innovative and thought-provoking work from a thriving, global community of young designers.

The show's title, "Canary in a Coalmine," refers to the idea that the projects selected for this show are early indicators of emerging trends in the design world. They are non-traditional design projects, and represent the periphery of design rather than the mainstream. The work portrays designers moving away from their traditional, production-oriented roles and turning their attention more toward concept, craft and art.

Sponsors: The 2003 Coroflot Members Show is made possible through the generous support of Dupont, Bombay Sapphire, Depp Glass, Success Printing and the IDNF.
